

By Laura Eisenberg Robinson and Michael B. Eisenberg

Name: _____

Super3• Plan• Do• Review*Review

- I read my piece to myself.
- My writing makes sense.
- My name and the date are on my writing.
- I have a title for my writing.
- I used periods, question marks, and exclamation marks.
- I used capital letters.
- My final work is neat.
- This is my best work.

From The Super3™: Information Skills for Younger Learners by Laura Eisenberg Robinson and Michael B. Eisenberg. Columbus, OH: Linworth Publishing, Inc.

Laura Eisenberg Robinson, certified in reading literacy, elementary, and special education, is a K-5 resource room teacher with the Seattle School District. Dr. Michael B. Eisenberg is the co-creator of the Big6™ and a professor and Dean Emeritus at the University of Washington, Information School, Seattle, Washington.

Editor's Note: Each issue we will feature reproducible items that are designed for you to share with your school community. It might be a lesson plan, a worksheet, or game. Each carries permission for you to reproduce the material within the building in which you work.